The following is an Examiner's Statement of Reasons for Allowance: It is the opinion of the Examiner that the Prior Art of Record does not disclose nor suggest the claimed combinations found within the Independent Claims 1, 20 and 38, and thus, such claims and their respective dependent claims are novel and unobvious. The sensing of ground resistance of a ground conductor and displaying the results is known, for example, via Tisdale et al. (6,396,284). Such ground resistance monitoring is accomplished by sending a signal to the cable, sensing a resulting current and calculating the resistance for display. Turino et al. (5,994,892) teach a utility meter for collecting, calculating, storing and displaying data relating to electric power, gas, water and the like. Both current and voltages are displayed as well as resulting power. However, such voltage and current values are not associated with or from the monitoring of the earth ground conductor. It is further known in the Art to monitor the ground and wire resistance associated with the various outlets within a building being supplied from a watt-hour meter/panelboard service entrance. But this does not make obvious the monitoring of the resistance, current and voltage of the earth ground conductor of such a system. The Prior Art does not appear to teach a method or device for a watt-hour meter wherein the monitoring and displaying of the resistance of the earth ground conductor, the monitoring and displaying of the voltage of the earth ground conductor and the monitoring and displaying of the current of the earth ground conductor is performed as well as suppressing transients and displaying the results of the suppressing. Although Tisdale et al. teach utilizing a sine wave and obtaining a voltage for the calculating of the resistance associated with the earth ground conductor, those waves and voltages are utilized for the resistance monitoring step and are not then the additionally claimed current and voltage monitoring steps of the earth ground conductor. Swanson et al. (5,748,093) teach voltage and transient suppressing monitoring and display, but do not make obvious the voltage monitoring of the earth ground conductor.

Any comments considered necessary by Applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
